The information in our report card includes the results of a "mystery shopper" study by Plan C and Gynuity Health Projects, completed in early 2017, as well as more recent purchases. In the 2017 study, we ordered "abortion kits" from online pharmacies and tested all pills we received in a lab. We have not tested the quality of the more recent purchases, instead basing our quality scores on prior knowledge of the manufacturers' product quality. All of the pills we received were real—they contained the labeled active ingredients. However, some had lower amounts of active ingredient than they were supposed to (which could make them less effective). Please note that many of our findings reflect purchases made in early 2017. Because online pharmacy services are unregulated, there is no way to assess the authenticity or quality of the products they provide today (but we have no reason to suspect that the quality of pills they ship now would be different).

Payment options varied: some sites accepted credit cards; some sites used bank transfer platforms, like Transferwise; others required wiring money via Western Union; others accepted Bitcoin. The cost of the pills, including shipping, averaged about $235 for an "abortion kit" containing both mifepristone and misoprostol. Buying misoprostol (Cytotec) alone may be less expensive, but is also less effective than using both mifepristone and misoprostol: 85% vs 97%.
